STECK GIRLS TO BE IN COMIC OPERA.

Edna Berwick Steck-Cruxton and Helen Louise Steck To Do Song and High Step

BEFORE DAZZLING FOOTLIGHTS.

* * *

It has been authoritatively announced that the vivacious and charming daughters of E. H. Steck, of Philadelphia and Daytona, Mrs. Edna Berwick Steck-Cruxton and Helen Louise Steck, will go upon the stage this season.

The girls have wanted for a long time to don the gauzy, abbreviated chorus girl attire, trip fantastic figures and [illegible] of everchanging draperies before the semi-circle of incandescents, but the unanimous opposition of the heads of the family restrained them till quite recently, when the girls took the reins in their own hands and authorized the announcement.

It was known to a small circle of the girls' Daytona friends to whom they confided girls' secrets that they had stage aspirations, but the secret was kept.

It was not until quite recently that the girls had the courage to assert themselves, and win the sanction of their parents.

While Mr. Steck opposed his daughters for many weeks, he finally gave a half-hearted consent. First, the mother was won over. She saw that their hearts were set on the plan, and she thought it would do more harm than good to refuse them. Mrs. Cruxton first approached her father, and at length he told her that inasmuch as she would never be contented until she had been on the stage she might make the trial. The younger daughter experienced more difficulty, and it was not until all the father's arguments were exhausted that she won him over.

"To tell you the truth," said Mrs. Steck, "I did not expect my daughters would keep up their work as long as they have. When they signed with the 'Havana' company it was understood that they should go right in and do general chorus work. This meant work. At the daily rehearsals they are made to dance, sing and go through endless chorus movements. When they returned after the first rehearsal, and related their experiences, I concluded they would not report for duty next day. But they did, and ever since they have been on hand promptly."

The girls are rehearsing in the chorus of a musical comedy soon to be presented at the Broadway theater, and their public debut before the footlights is watched with considerable interest.

The girls are still in their teens, though the elder is suing in the courts for the annulment of her marriage of last April with W. Cruxton, whom she charges with insane jealousy when she chooses to dance with boys with whom she danced before her marriage.

Mrs. Steck says she has been warned that the stage is a dreadful place, but that her daughters are well schooled in the ways of the world, and are abundantly capable of looking out for themselves.

TEED FAILS TO COME BACK TO LIFE.

Followers Watched All Yesterday For Koresh I To Sit Up and Take Notice.

WIFE OF DEAD TOOK THRONE.

* * *

Cyrus R. Teed, known as Koresh I, founder and head of Koreshan Unity, a corporation of Western people, who bought a large tract of land in extreme Southern Florida ten years ago, and sought to establish their peculiar beliefs in this section of the country, died Tuesday morning early. The fact of his death was not disclosed until Thursday, and when investigation was made, devout followers said they were awaiting resurrection, expected to occur Christmas Day. While the body of the dead leader lay unattended, Victoria Gratia the supposed wife of Teed, assumed the throne with much mock solemnity, and declared that the body should not be buried until there was a manifestation of divine will in connection with his early service. Teed's followers believe that the population of the earth is on the inner surface of the globe instead of outside, and that sun and solar systems prevail inside the globe, instead of outside. It is probable that the sect will be dissolved unless the resurrection of Koresh occur.

This is twice within a comparitively short space of time that two cults with the heads established on Florida soil have gone to pieces by the death of their founders.

There is a great spirit of unrest in the human breast and many are going out after new theories, and seeking vainly for definite knowledge of things hidden from the foundations of the world, and destined to remain hidden throughout the existence on this old earth.

What the future world or worlds hold in store is revealed after death, if at all. Live the best you can, and trust your Creator to make it well with your soul hereafter.

FALLS FROM BICYCLE AND BREAKS LEG.

James Barrett of South Palmetto Avenue, Meets With Accident Christmas Morning.

DR. HOWE SET BROKEN LIMB.

James Barrett, of South Palmetto avenue, met with a bad accident Christmas morning in a fall from his bicycle, receiving a comminuted fracture of the leg just above the ankle.

It seems that Mr. Barrett was out riding with a friend, Clyde Bivin, who comes from the same town, Banning, Pa., and the accident occurred while they were on Ridgewood avenue, in the southern part of Port Orange. They had just discussed turning back, and after passing a rough place in the roadway, where some repairs had recently been made, Mr. Biven alighted from his wheel and Mr. Barrett, who was following closely, not being aware of his intention to stop just at that moment ran into him and was thrown from his wheel. He thinks that in falling his foot caught in the spokes or some other part of the bicycle, and the pedal struck across his leg, breaking both bones just above the ankle joint.

It was rumored that the accident was caused by a passing automobile, and in fact it was suggested to Mr. Barrett that he lay the blame upon a car that passed them just before he fell, but he wishes it distinctly understood that it was an accident, pure and simple and no one was in any way at fault.

Mr. Barrett, who is a friend and townsman of Messrs. W. B. and W. H. Wright, came here from Banning, Pa., about two weeks ago with his wife and child, with the intention of locating here, and since his arrival has purchased of W. H. Wright the cottage which he is now occupying on South Palmetto avenue.

First Time In The History of Pugilism That a Negro Has Been World-Beater.

WILL JIM JEFFIES STAND THIS?

* * *

(By United Press.)

SYDNEY, New South Wales, Dec. 26.—For the first time in the history of pugilism a negro today holds the title as heavyweight champion of the world.

Jack Johnson, the big, burly Texan, won premier honors in decisively beating Tommie Burns in fourteen rounds fighting.

Burns today is a sorry sight. His eyes are almost closed and his face puffed up to almost twice its size, while his body bore evidence of the heavy punching inflicted upon him by the negro.

Johnson shows scarcely a mark. By the victory Johnson's prediction, that he was Burn's master at all times, proved true.

Joe Smith is Dead.

Joe Smith, who was shot by his wife in Yamassee, a negro suburb of DeLand, one day last week, is dead from the effects of his wounds.

From what can be learned, Joe was generally considered a "bad man." He often abused, ill-treated and beat his wife. He had threatened to kill her and she was coming to the home of her parents in Daytona. She returned to her house for her clothes when Joe came along. She left the house, carrying a loaded shot gun with her. Joe followed her with an open knife in his hand. He backed her all around the house, flourishing the knife in her face. He said that he would now back her all around the field. She continued to back away from him, still with the loaded gun in her hand, cocked. Joe made a jump for her—and she pulled the trigger. The load tore through his shoulder. Joe was carried into the house and lived until Thursday morning, when he died.

COBURN'S MINSTRELS ROBBED.

Bold Thieves Enter Private Car During Night Performance at Theatre.

WILL SOON BE IN DAYTONA.

* * *

While J. A. Coburn's Greater Minstrels were in the midst of the night performance at Vicksburg, Miss., recently two masked men forced an entrance into his private car, "Leota," which was standing on the A. & V. railway siding at South Madison street, near the depot. Finding the colored porter alone in the car they ordered him to "Git, nigger; git quick!" which he did, and quickly summoning an officer they returned to the car, but the thieves had made a quick haul and left after rifling several grips and taking several overcoats, trousers and other articles.

Manager Coburn advised that the thieves very considerately overlooked a bag of silver containing something over $200 in his desk, but took a valuable Smith & Wesson revolver in the drawer above. This is the second theatrical private car which has been entered and robbed in that city this season. The porter was unable to give a coherent description of either man, as they were masked and armed.

Coburn's Greater Minstrels are scheduled to play at Wilman's Opera House, Seabreeze, on January 12. C. F. Burgman is corresponding with Mr. Coburn to arrange for a two nights performance.

The Pickerts, which were to play during the week of December 28th have changed their route and will appear at a later date.

SOME EDIBLE CHRISTMAS GREENS.

City Marshal and Daily News Man Accept Invitation to Visit Farm on 2d Ave.

Messrs. C. B. and J. H. Johnson, while on their way to the Brubacher farm, Christmas morning, for lettuce and celery to add to the menu of their Christmas dinner invited Marshal Meyers and a representative of the Daily News to accompany them and see and taste for themselves these products of Mr. Brubacher's toil and experience.

Mr. Brubacher grows a variety of vegetables and this year he probably has the earliest celery of any one in this vicinity, and his lettuce is superb—big, solid heads like small cabbages. He has considerable celery now boarded, from which he has been cutting for some time, while there is still more of it in various stages of growth. His celery is nicely blanched and of fine flavor. So far the local demand has taken the most of his celery, but he expects to begin shipping some next week.

Messrs. Johnson's place, which adjoins Mr. Brubacher's on the east, is looking very promising. They have between three and four acres now planted to celery and lettuce, only a small portion remaining unplanted, owing to a shortage of plants. These gentlemen began the cultivation of this ground the day after Thanksgiving, yet today it is one of the cleanest and finest looking farms in the vicinity.

The Bell farm, W. H. Holmes' fine place, in fact all the farms located on Second avenue appear, in passing, to be in a thriving condition and present a very handsome and interesting appearance.

While J. A Coburn's Greater Minstrels were in the midst of the night performance at Vicksburg, Miss., recently two masked men forced an entrance into his private car, 'Leota," which was standing on the A. & V. railway siding at South Madison street, near the depot. Finding the colored porter alone in the car they ordered him to "Git, nigger; git quick!" which he did, and quickly summoning an officer they returned to the car, but the thieves had made a quick haul and left after rifling several grips and taking several overcoats, trousers and other articles.

Manager Coburn advised that the thieves very considerately overlooked a bag of silver containing something over $200 in his desk, but took a valuable Smith & Wesson revolver in the drawer above. This is the second theatrical private car which has been entered and robbed in that city this season. The porter was unable to give a coherent description of either man, as they were masked and armed.

Coburn's Greater Minstrels are scheduled to play at Wilman's Opera House, Seabreeze, on January 12. C. F. Burgman is corresponding with Mr. Coburn to arrange for a two nights performanee,

The Pickerts, which were to play during the week of December 28th have changed their route and will appear at a later date.

Sir Knights Enjoy The Day—Much Interest Manifested at Christmas Trees.

The social and other features of the reception by the Oriental Commandery No. 9, Knights Templar, yesterday at Masonic Hall, were all that could be desired. About fifty were present including several visiting Sir Knights, who were gladly received and warmly welcomed by the local members.

The entertainments at the various churches, as previously announced in the Daily News, came off on schedule time and with a blaze of glory, so much so that all the participants and spectators are delighted with the results

City Marshal and Daily News Man Accept Invitation to Visit Farm on 2d Ave.

Messrs. C. R. and J. H. Johnson, while on their way to the Brubacher farm, Christmas morning, for lettuce and celery to add to the menu of their Christmas dinner, invited Marshal Meyers and a representative of the Daily News to accompany them and see and taste for themselves these products of Mr Brubacher's toil and experience

Mr. Brubacher grows a variety of vegetables and this year he probably has the earliest celery of any one in this vicinity, and his lettuce is superb—big, solid heads like small cabbages. He has considerable celery now boarded, from which he has been cutting for some time, while there is still more of it in various stages of growth. His celery is nicely blanched and of fine flavor. So far the local demand has taken the most of his celery, but he expects to begin shipping some next week.

Messrs. Johnson's place, which adjoins Mr. Brubacher's on the east, is looking very promising. They have between three and four acres now planted to celery and lettuce, only a small portion remaining unplanted, owing to a shortage of plants. These gentlemen began the cultivation of this ground the day after Thanksgiving, yet today it is one of the cleanest and finest looking farms in the vicinity.

The Ball farm, W. H. Holmes' fine place, in fact all the farms located on Second avenue appear, in passing, to be in a thriving condition and present a very handsome and interesting appearance.

THE LATE DONALD G. MITCHELL (IK MARVEL).

Donald G. Mitchell, known all over the world as Ik Marvel, author of "Reveries of a Bachelor" and "Dream Life," who died recently at his home in Connecticut, was born in Norwich, Conn., in April, 1822. His father was a clergyman and took personal charge of the early education of the son, implanting in his mind many of the beautifully poetic sentiments that made Mr. Mitchell's work so dear to the hearts of thousands of readers in after life. In his youth Mr. Mitchell was very delicate and after his graduation went abroad in search of health. His first work to attract general attention was "Reveries of a Bachelor," which he produced in 1850.

Seabreeze News

SEABREEZE, Dec. 26.—The new sign for the Seabreeze Sanitarium is neat and artistic, and shows to advantage. Dr. Bohannon, physician in charge, has had his outfit brought over from Daytona, and every provision has been made for scientific and sanitary treatment of patients.

There is almost always something going on at the Elmira Cottage. Miss Kelley has the happy faculty of harmonizing and utilizing those within the spell of her influence, so that the house is an oasis in the desert wastes of "nothin' doin'" often encountered by the daily news gatherer. Numerous minor illuminations of the season are Thanksgiving and Christmas. So a reporter had "straight as a crow flies" to the Elmira Cottage Christmas Eve, and, rapping at the door from came a mingling of many voices, walked into the very sanctum sanctorum of old Santa Claus. A tree gaily bedecked with Christmas decorations, whose branches were already beginning to bend under the weight of numerous presents, stood in one corner of the room, which was well filled with ladies re-tying packages and hanging them on the tree. This tree had lengthened and spread so as to include the nearby neighbors, and it was whispered around as a real secret that the scholarly Dr. Leland was to masquerade as "Kris Kringle." In any events later reports from the numerous participants affirmed it to have been a great success in every detail, and most thoroughly enjoyed.

Mr. and Mrs. A. I. Miller are spending their Christmas in Eustis, at the family reunion.

There were the usual number of dine-out, and family parties yesterday. The Princess Issena, The Colonnades and The Mayfield all had fine dinners, were handsomely decorated and had their quota of dinner guests. Mr. and Mrs. Vining, of Ormond, dined at The Princess.

Mr. and Mrs. Wallace are at The Mayfield, awaiting the opening of the big Clarendon.

Rev. and Mrs. Thomas Cook, of Camden, S. C., spent a few days at The Mayfield, en route to points on the East Coast farther south.

Miss Emma Cannon, of DeLand, spent part of the week here, the guest of Mrs. H. L. Kattenberger, at her beach home.

A theatre party Thursday evening comprised Misses Burgman, Hore, Maud and Ethel Smithers, Messrs. Jerome and Lee Burgman and Billie Baggett, made the trip to Daytona on the Billie Man and took in both shows.

Doings at Daytona Beach

DAYTONA BEACH, Dec. 26.—William Ronald arrived from Rollins College Wednesday to spend the holidays with his parents on the Halifax.

C. L. Hiss has been busy part of this week cleaning the cemetery of dead grass and leaves.

Pine street is at last opened to the public, and is a very good street as far as it goes, which is to the city limits. It is the continuation of Pinewood street in Seabreeze, or joins Pinewood and Peninsula drive, Daytona Beach.

Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Hoskinson entertained Daytona relatives at their Christmas dinner.

The Seaside Inn was beautifully decorated for the holidays yesterday. Two trees, one for the elders and the other for the children, were set in the back parlor, tastily bedecked with popcorn and tinsel trimmings and well filled with a bumping array of presents. There was also a tree set for the servants. Everybody was in the holiday mood, even the transients, who had just arrived. The hotel register shows a very good December business for this popular house.

Miss Etta Freeman arrived Thursday afternoon from the Woman's State University at Tallahassee and will spend the school holidays with her parents at Pinehurst. Miss Etta was accompanied by one of her school friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Phillips and daughter and Miss Goodrow, of Vermont, are recent arrivals, and are located for the season at the Harry Thompson cottage on Seabreeze avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Guy King and child arrived from Ravenna, Ohio, Thursday and are located for the season at one of the Hibbard apartment houses.

The White House dined fifty guests yesterday. Last Sunday Mrs. Howard served dinner to forty-three.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. F. Rice and Mrs. F. R. Russell, of Easton, Mass., arrived Thursday evening and are pleasantly located at the Seaside Inn.

Mr. and Mrs. Quigley and little daughter, Margaret, of Pennsylvania, recently arrived and are guests at Surf Crest.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas [illegible] and family, Mr. and Mrs. Vining and Roscoe Beach, returned Thursday from a camping trip up the Tomoka. Roscoe Beach is a student at the Miami Military College, Germantown, Ohio, and came down to spend the holiday vacation with his parents.

Catching Rats.

The best way to catch rats is to put any animal substance, well perfumed with oil of rhodium, into a trap. This induces them to enter readily and even draws them from a considerable distance, as they are extremely partial to this oil. An ounce of oil of rhodium will cost you 50 cents. Catnip to a cat is nothing like rhodium to a rat. Oil of rhodium is made from a species of bindweed and is used in perfumery.—New York Press.

Seabreeze News

SEABREEZE, Dec. 26.—The new sign for the Seabreeze Sanitarium is neat and artistic, and shows to advantage. Dr. Bohannon, physician in charge, has had his outfit brought over from Daytona, and every provision has been made for scientific and sanitary treatment of patients.

There is almost always something going on at the Elmira Cottage. Miss Kelley has the happy faculty of harmonizing and utilizing those within the spell of her influence, so that the house is an oasis in the desert wastes of "nothin' doin'" often encountered by the daily news gatherer. Numerous minor illuminations of the season are Thanksgiving and Christmas. So a reporter hied "straight as a crow flies" to the Elmira Cottage Christmas Eve, and, rapping at the door from came a mingling of many voices, walked into the very sanctum sanctorum of old Santa Claus. A tree gaily bedecked with Christmas decorations, whose branches were already beginning to bend under the weight of numerous presents, stood in one corner of the room, which was well filled with ladies re-tying packages and hanging them on the tree. This tree had lengthened and spread so as to include the nearby neighbors, and it was whispered around as a real secret that the scholarly Dr. Leland was to masquerade as "Kris Krinkle." In any events, later reports from the numerous participants affirmed it to have been a great success in every detail, and most thoroughly enjoyed.

Mr. and Mrs. A. I. Miller are spending their Christmas in Eustis, at the family reunion.

There were the usual number of diners-out, and family parties yesterday. The Princess Issena, The Colonnades and The Mayfield all had fine menues, were hadsomely decorated and had their quota of dinner guests. Mr. and Mrs. Vining, of Ormond, dined at The Princess.

Mr. and Mrs. Wallace are at The Mayfield, awaiting the opening of the big Clarendon.

Rev. and Mrs. Thomas Cook, of Camden, S. C., spent a few days at The Mayfield, en route to points on the East Coast farther south.

Miss Emma Cannons, of DeLand, spent part of the week here, the guest of Mrs. H. L. Kochersperger, at her beach home.

A theatre party Thursday evening comprised Misses Burgman, Horn, Maud and Ethel Strothers, Messrs. Jerome and Leo Burgman and Billie Baggett, made the trip to Daytona on the Billie Max and took in both shows.

The Extremes.

Doings at Daytona Beach

DAYTONA BEACH, Dec. 26.—William Ronald arrived from Rollins College Wednesday to spend the holidays with his parents on the Halifax.

C. L. Horn has been busy part of this week cleaning the cemetery of dead grass and leaves.

Pine street is at last opened to the public, and is a very good street as far as it goes, which is to the city limits. It is the continuation of Pinewood street in Seabreeze, or joins Pinewood and Peninsula drive, Daytona Beach.

Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Bleckman entertained Daytona relatives at their Christmas dinner.

The Seaside Inn was beautifully decorated for the holidays yesterday. Two trees one for the elders and the other for the children, were set in the back parlor, tastily bedecked with popcorn and tinsel trimmings and well filled with a tempting array of presents. There was also a tree set for the servants. Everybody was in the holiday mood, even the transients, who had just arrived. The hotel register shows a very good December business for this popular house.

Miss Etta Freeman arrived Thursday afternoon from the Woman's State University at Tallahassee and will spend the school holidays with her parents at Pinehurst. Miss Etta was accompanied by one of her school friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Phillips and daughter and Miss Goodrow, of Vermont, are recent arrivals, and are located for the season at the Harry Thompson cottage, on Seabreeze avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Guy King and child arrived from Ravena, Ohio, Thursday and are located for the season at one of the Hibbard apartment houses.

The White House dined fifty guests yesterday. Last Sunday Mrs. Howard served dinner to forty-three.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. P. Riley and Mrs. P. R. Russell, of Emett, Mass.; arrived Thursday evening and are pleasantly located at the Seaside Inn.

Mr. and Mrs. Quigley and little daughter, Margaret, of Pennsylvania recently arrived and are guests at Surf Crest.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Leach and family, Mr. and Mrs. Vining and Roscoe Beach, returned Thursday from a camping trip up the Tomoka. Roscoe Beach is a student at the Miami Military College, Germantown, Ohio, and came down to spend the holiday vacation with his parents.

Catching Rats.

The best way to catch rats is to put any animal substance, well perfumed with oil of rhodium, into a trap. This induces them to enter readily and even draws them from a considerable distance, as they are extremely partial to this oil. An ounce of oil of rhodium will cost you 50 cents. Catnip to a cat is nothing like rhodium to a rat. Oil of rhodium is made from a species of bindweed and is used in perfumery.—New York Press.

Misplaced Sympathy.

A sympathetic Frenchman unluckily bought an almanac that gave the dates of the world's chief events. From that day on he lived a life of mourning. Thus on April 30 he had crape on his hat.

"Have you lost a relative?" a friend asked. "Not exactly," said he. "But today is a sad anniversary for the French people. On April 30, 1524, the Chevalier Bayard died." On May 2 he had crape on again. "Still mourning Bayard?" said the friend. "No," said he, "but don't you remember that on May 2 a great and charming poet, Alfred de Musset, breathed his last?" On the 6th of the same month, "Whom are you mourning for now?" "For an honest man, General Cavaignac." On the 30th, crying terribly, he said: "Ah, Joan of Arc! On this date, in 1431, a handful of Englishmen and a miserable bishop put the gallant maid to death." On July 13 he took a bath in memory of the assassination of Marat. On the 16th Beranger's death gave him a fatal shock. On the 18th, having read of Napoleon's departure to St. Helena, he felt better, but on the 23d the bombardment of Dieppe by the English, in 1694, confined him again to his bed. He was taken with a fever and died on the 22d, muttering, "In a month the massacre of St. Bartholomew!"—New York Sun.

Eloquence of the Welsh.

Here is a little story of an Englishman in Wales: "On the comparative qualities of the English and Welsh tongues let me tell of the Welshman who saluted me in the Welsh. I was compelled to confess ignorance. 'Ah,' he said, turning fluently enough to English, 'you should learn the Welsh! My wife was English, and she can speak conversations now quite well.'

"I acknowledged my shortcomings and admitted that I had always understood the Welsh to be a remarkably eloquent tongue. 'Yes, yes, it iss so,' said the native. 'In Welsh a man can express exactly what he means. As for the English, I call it not a language at all—only a dialect.

"'You haf noted that an Englishman or a foreigner in speaking his language waves his hands and arms about to help out the meaning of the words, but a Welshman who can speak Welsh well he haas no need to move his hands. In the Welsh he can say all that he means.'"—Chicago News.

Fife Wheat.

Years ago, about a century, David Fife, a Scotchman of Otonabee, Ont., sent to a friend in Glasgow for a small bag of seed wheat to try in a cleared patch of the backwoods. The friend obtained some seed from a vessel just in from Danzig. Unfortunately it was a fall wheat and reached David Fife in the spring. Nevertheless David Fife sowed it in spring. One can guess how feverishly the backwoods farmer watched for the growth of his experiment. Only three wheat heads survived till the fall, but those three wheat heads were entirely free of the rust that had ruined his neighbor's crops, and those three heads really represented a new variety of wheat, a fall wheat turned into a spring wheat. David Fife treasured the three heads and planted them in spring. Such was the beginning of Fife wheat in America.—Agnes C. Laut in Outing Magazine.

Vanity of the Peacock.

Our favorite and much petted peacock, says a correspondent of the London Spectator, can be kept happy any length of time looking at his reflection in the window pane or in a looking glass. He comes in daily to tea, making no mistake about the hour, and spends much time en route in gazing at himself as he appears in the glass of the French windows by which he enters the room. If I am sewing and do not speak to him when he comes into the room, he will gently put his head quite close, almost touching my ring or needle, for he likes bright things, till I have to give up working and talk to him as with a small child whom one is afraid of pricking.

Lost Charm of the Wayside Inn.

The inns of England, celebrated by Harrison and famous far and wide at the beginning of the last century, have degenerated into sad places which we visit only of necessity. Little did Stephenson think when he proposed the line from Manchester to Liverpool that he would ruin the wayside inns of England and kill the art of cookery.—Blackwood's Magazine.

A Reassuring Truth.

A lady on one of the ocean liners who seemed very much afraid of icebergs asked the captain what would happen in case of a collision.

The captain replied, "The iceberg would move right along, madam, just as if nothing had happened." And the old lady seemed greatly relieved.—Success.

Unsettled.

Skinner—Good morning, ma'am. Did you ever see anything so unsettled as the weather has been lately? Mrs. Hashley—Well, there's your board bill, Mr. Skinner.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

In a Bad Way.

"Here is a doctor who says you mustn't eat when you're worried."

"But suppose you're always worried for fear you ain't goin' to get anything to eat?"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Couldn't Scream.

"I was afraid you'd scream when I kissed you."

"I didn't dare. Mamma was in the next room and would have heard me."

Von Bulow and Sarasate.

In one of his letters Von Bulow refers to Sarasate as follows: "He has enchanted me beyond measure, particularly in his concert of yesterday, when he played a splendid work, 'Symphonie Espagnole,' by Lalo—played in so genuinely artistic a manner that today I am still intoxicated with it. His playing also of the Saint-Saens concert piece for violin is as entrancing as interesting. It is a shame that he should come to see me. N. B.—I have purposely avoided his personal acquaintance. Perhaps he has tried to see me, for over my door stands the notice:

"Mornings not to be seen.
Afternoons not at home.

"But perhaps he did not ring the bell. (He never plays under 1,000 francs—he received this sum here at a private musicale. For secretary he has Otto Goldschmidt, who sent me a pass, which I returned with the remark that for such an important concert I could certainly afford to buy my ticket. Six marks was in no way too much to pay!)"

Bulow did make his acquaintance, however, as he refers in a later letter to Sarasate coming, quite unexpectedly, to a "conference with Johannes" (Brahms), at which he himself was present.

Busy Woman.

NEWS OF THE HOTELS

The Prince George.

Thomas Lewis and sister of Chicago arrived at The Prince George Christmas.

Among the guests at The Prince George for Christmas were Charles A. Young and Mrs. Young, Henry Mitchell and Mrs. Mitchell of Daytona Beach.

Despland Hotel.

Among the arrivals at The Despland over Christmas were: F. D. Stiddam and Jacob Elsas of New York city, L. J. Trouston of Atlanta.

Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Williams and the Misses Dora and Norma Williams of this city spent Christmas at The Despland.

After dinner most of the guests enjoyed the cheer of the parlors or spent the afternoon at cards. A number took in the picture theatres.

The Ridgewood.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Marcuse of Chicago, who have been regular winter guests at The Ridgewood for a number of seasons, entertained a number of friends at this hotel for Christmas dinner. Those in the party were: Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Foster, Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Munroe and son, Fuller, Mrs. Weeks and Mrs. Stillman of Joliet, Ill.; Mr. and Mrs. A. King of Marion, O., and George N. Chamberlain and daughter, Miss Josie F., of this city. After the dinner the guests spent a delightful afternoon at cards.

Among the arrivals at The Ridgewood over Christmas were: J. A. Gaboyan and A. Blonerberg of Hoboken, N. J., and C. Tharzelen and Miss J. L. Powers of New York city.

WHEN BATHS WERE RARE.

The Time When a Dandy Washed His Face Nearly Every Day.

It will come as a shock to some readers to learn that one of the most serious occupations of a fifteenth century wife was to protect her husband from fleas!

Taking into consideration, however, the horror with which the people of those days regarded cold water on clean clothes, it is not surprising to learn that the question of exterminating those insects made life a burden.

Cleanliness was not only looked upon as a dangerous custom, but a positive sin. The soul alone was regarded as of any importance, so that the neglect of the body became so much a virtue that a bath was only allowed in cases of illness. At any rate, water had no place in the toilet of the grand monarque. His valet after pouring a little containing spirits of wine over the hands of his majesty passed a comb through his hair, thus completing his toilet for the day.

In the seventeenth century, however, cleanliness was carried to such an excess that an English dandy was expected to wash his face "nearly every day." So rapidly did the custom spread that it was necessary to issue a solemn warning that the practice of using water for this purpose "injures the eyesight, engenders toothache and catarrh, renders the complexion colorless and makes the skin susceptible to cold in the winter and heat in the summer."

Washing seems to have been more popular in the eighteenth century in France than in England, this in spite of the fact that water was forbidden in the former country.

A lost art, according to M. Franklin in "La Civilite du XIII. au XIX. Siecle," is that of blowing one's nose. Today it is a more or less perfunctory necessity, but in the seventeenth century it was an accomplishment. One person imitated the blast of a trumpet, another the swearing of a cat. Possibly snuff taking, which was the fashionable habit of that day, had something to do with its accomplishments, perfection in which consisted in making "neither too much nor too little noise."

Another noteworthy fact on the etiquette of those days is that nobody ever knocked at the door. The correct thing was to scratch softly with the nail of the finger, which the dandies of the day kept extremely long. Etiquette was so rigid, in fact, that it is said that the Duchesse de Montpensier spent a quarter of her life in mental torture as to whether different individuals admitted to her presence were entitled to sit on chairs with backs or only on stools.

Restless.

Caller—So your cook has passed away to a better place? Hostess—Yes, but I don't know if she'll stay. Poor Bridget was very hard to suit.—Boston Traveler.

"The poet is born, not made," sayeth the proverb. In other words, it isn't his own fault.

Misplaced Sympathy.

A sympathetic Frenchman unluckily bought an almanac that gave the dates of the world's chief events. From that day on he lived a life of mourning. Thus on April 30 he had crape on his hat.

"Have you lost a relative?" a friend asked. "Not exactly," said he. "But today is a sad anniversary for the French people. On April 30, 1524, the Chevalier Bayard died." On May 2 he had crape on again. "Still mourning Bayard?" said the friend. "No," said he, "but don't you remember that on May 2 a great and charming poet, Alfred de Musset, breathed his last?" On the 6th of the same month, "Whom are you mourning for now?" "For an honest man, General Caviagnac." On the 30th, crying terribly, he said: "Ah, Joan of Arc! On this date, in 1431, a handful of Englishmen and a miserable bishop put the gallant maid to death." On July 13 he took a bath in memory of the assassination of Marat. On the 16th Beranger's death gave him a fatal shock. On the 18th, having read of Napoleon's departure to St. Helena, he felt better, but on the 23d the bombardment of Dieppe by the English, in 1694, confined him again to his bed. He was taken with a fever and died on the 22d, muttering, "In a month the massacre of St. Bartholomew!"—New York Sun.

Eloquence of the Welsh.

Here is a little story of an Englishman in Wales: "On the comparative qualities of the English and Welsh tongues let me tell of the Welshman who saluted me in the Welsh. I was compelled to confess ignorance. 'Ah,' he said, turning fluently enough to English, 'you should learn the Welsh! My wife was English, and she can speak conversations now quite well.'

"I acknowledged my shortcomings and admitted that I had always understood the Welsh to be a remarkably eloquent tongue. 'Yes, yes, it iss so,' said the native. 'In Welsh a man can express exactly what he means. As for the English, I call it not a language at all—only a dialect.

"'You haf noted that an Englishman or a foreigner in speaking his language waves his hands and arms about to help out the meaning of the words, but a Welshman who can speak Welsh well he hass no need to move his hands. In the Welsh he can say all that he means.'"—Chicago News.

Fife Wheat.

Years ago, about a century, David Fife., a Scotchman of Otonabee, Ont., sent to a friend in Glasgow for a small bag of seed wheat to try in a cleared patch of the backwoods. The friend obtained some seed from a vessel just in from Danzig. Unfortunately it was a fall wheat and reached David Fife in the spring. Nevertheless David Fife sowed it in spring. One can guess how feverishly the backwoods farmer watched for the growth of his experiment. Only three wheat heads survived till the fall, but those three wheat heads were entirely free of the rust that had ruined his neighbor's crops, and those three heads really represented a new variety of wheat, a fall wheat turned into a spring wheat. David Fife treasured the three heads and planted them in spring. Such was the beginning of Fife wheat in America.—Agnes C. Laut in Outing Magazine.

Vanity of the Peacock.

Our favorite and much petted peacock, says a correspondent of the London Spectator, can be kept happy any length of time looking at his reflection in the window pane or in a looking glass. He comes in daily to tea, making no mistake about the hour, and spends much time en route in gazing at himself as he appears in the glass of the French windows by which he enters the room. If I am sewing and do not speak to him when he comes into the room, he will gently put his head quite close, almost touching my ring or needle, for he likes bright things, till I have to give up working and talk to him as with a small child whom one is afraid of pricking.

Lost Charm of the Wayside Inn.

The inns of England, celebrated by Harrison and famous far and wide at the beginning of the last century, have degenerated into sad places which we visit only of necessity. Little did Stephenson think when he proposed the line from Manchester to Liverpool that he would ruin the wayside inns of England and kill the art of cookery. —Blackwood's Magazine.

A Reassuring Truth.

A lady on one of the ocean liners who seemed very much afraid of icebergs asked the captain what would happen in case of a collision.

The captain replied, "The iceberg would move right along, madam, just as if nothing had happened." And the old lady seemed greatly relieved.—Success.

Unsettled.

Skinner—Good morning, ma'am. Did you ever see anything so unsettled as the weather has been lately? Mrs. Hashley—Well, there's your board bill, Mr. Skinner.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

In a Bad Way.

"Here is a doctor who says you mustn't eat when you're worried."

"But suppose you're always worried for fear you ain't goin' to get anything to eat?"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Couldn't Scream.

"I was afraid you'd scream when I kissed you."

"I didn't dare. Mamma was in the next room and would have heard me."

About thirty couples spent an enjoyable evening Christmas at the Keating casino, where the annual Christmas dance was given. Music was furnished by the Daytona orchestra. The hall was prettily decorated for the occasion with holly. Among the out-of-town guests at the dance was Miss Dora Burgess of Delano, who is spending a few days in the city with friends and relatives.

Von Bulow and Sarasate.

In one of his letters Von Bulow refers to Sarasate as follows: "He has enchanted me beyond measure, particularly in his concert of yesterday, when he played a splendid work, 'Symphonie Espagnole,' by Lalo—played in so genuinely artistic a manner that today I am still intoxicated with it. His playing also of the Saint-Saens concert piece for violin is as entrancing as interesting. It is a shame that he cannot come to see me. N. B.—I have purposely avoided his personal acquaintance. Perhaps he has tried to see me, for over my door stands the notice:

"Mornings—not to be seen.
Afternoons—not at home.

"But perhaps he did not ring the bell. (He never plays under 1,000 francs—he received this sum here at a private musicale.) For secretary he has Otto Goldschmidt, who sent me a pass, which I returned with the remark that for such an important concert I could certainly afford to buy my ticket. Six marks was in no way too much to pay!"

Bulow did make his acquaintance, however, as he refers in a later letter to Sarasate coming, quite unexpectedly, to a "conference with Johannes" (Brahms), at which he himself was present.

Busy Woman.

NEWS OF THE HOTELS

The Prince George.

Thomas Lewis and sister of Chicago arrived at The Prince George Christmas.

Among the guests at The Prince George for Christmas were Charles A. Young and Mrs. Young, Henry Mitchell and Mrs. Mitchell of Daytona Beach.

Despland Hotel.

Among the arrivals at The Despland over Christmas were: F. D. Stiddam and Jacob Elsas of New York city, L J Trouston of Atlanta.

Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Williams and the Misses Dora and Norma Williams of this city spent Christmas at The Despland.

After dinner most of the guests enjoyed the cheer of the parlors or spent the afternoon at cards. A number took in the picture theatres.

The Ridgewood.

Mr. and Mrs E. Marrener of Chicago, who have been regular winter guests at The Ridgewood for a number of seasons, entertained a number of friends at this hotel for Christmas dinner. Those in the party were: Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Foster, Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Munroe and son, Fuller, Mrs. Weeks and Mrs. Stillman of Joliet, Ill.; Mr. and Mrs. A. Kling of Marion, O., and George N. Chamberlain and daughter, Miss Jessie F., of this city. After the dinner the guests spent a delightful afternoon at cards.

Among the arrivals at The Ridgewood over Christmas were: J. A. Gaboyan and A. Blonerberg of Hoboken, N. J., and C. Tharzelen and Miss J L. Powers of New York city.

WHEN BATHS WERE RARE.

The Time When a Dandy Washed His Face Nearly Every Day.

It will come as a shock to some readers to learn that one of the most serious occupations of a fifteenth century wife was to protect her husband from fleas!

Taking into consideration, however, the horror with which the people of those days regarded cold water and clean clothes, it is not surprising to learn that the question of exterminating these insects made life a burden.

Cleanliness was not only looked upon as a dangerous custom, but a positive sin. The soul alone was regarded as of any importance, so that the neglect of the body became so much a virtue that a bath was only allowed in cases of illness. At any rate, water had no place in the toilet of the grand monarque. His valet after pouring a flask containing spirits of wine over the hands of his majesty passed a comb through his hair, thus completing his toilet for the day.

In the seventeenth century, however, cleanliness was carried to such an excess that an English dandy was expected to wash his face "nearly every day." So rapidly did the custom spread that it was necessary to issue a solemn warning that the practice of using water for this purpose "injures the eye sight, engenders toothache and catarrh, renders the complexion colorless and makes the skin susceptible to cold in the winter and heat in the summer."

Washing seems to have been more popular in the eighteenth century in France than in England, this in spite of the fact that water was forbidden in the former country.

A lost art, according to M. Franklin in "La Civilite du XIII. au XIX. Siecle," is that of blowing one's nose. Today it is a more or less perfunctory necessity, but in the seventeenth century it was an accomplishment. One person imitated the blast of a trumpet, another the swearing of a cat. Possibly snuff taking, which was the fashionable habit of that day, had something to do with its accomplishments, perfection in which consisted in making "neither too much nor too little noise."

Another noteworthy fact on the etiquette of those days is that nobody ever knocked at the door. The correct thing was to scratch softly with the nail of the finger, which the dandies of the day kept extremely long. Etiquette was so right, in fact, that it is said that the Duchesse de Montpensier spent a quarter of her life in mental torture as to whether different individuals admitted to her presence were entitled to sit on chairs with backs or only on stools.

Restless.

Caller—So your cook has passed away to a better place? Hostess—Yes, but I don't know if she'll stay. Poor Bridget was very hard to suit.—Boston Traveler.

"The poet is born, not made," sayeth the proverb. In other words, it isn't his own fault.

Daniel E. Lyon and Miss Maud Milburn United In Marriage Christmas Afternoon.

Daniel E. Lyon and Miss Maud Milburn were united in marriage at 1:30 o'clock Christmas afternoon at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Milburn, in Port Orange, Rev. M. D. Wilder, of this city, officiating. They are now in St. Augustine for a brief wedding trip.

Mr. Lyon is a prominent resident of Port Orange and Miss Milburn has hosts of friends throughout this section, having at one time resided with her parents in Daytona.

Miss Milburn has been teaching for several years in the public school at Holly Hill, where she is a great favorite with both children and parents. As the marriage was suddenly decided upon for this date, being set for some time in the future, Mrs. Lyon will continue her work in the Holly Hill school until the end of the term.
